ALWAYS WAS ALWAYS WILL BE . . .

The Australian Institute of Music acknowledges the traditional custodians of the lands on which our campuses are situated; the Wurundjeri Woi Wurrung of the Kulin Nation, and the Gadigal of the Eora Nation. As we share our knowledge in teaching and learning, we pay our respects of Elders past, present, and emerging, as it is their knowledge and experience that holds the key to the success of future generations.

FOREWORD

Music is a celebration of individuality and cooperation, diversity and harmony, humility and virtuosity.

In the 21st century, everyone with a smart phone has instant access to the manifold and diverse worlds of music and can be equally enamoured with local music as with music emanating from any part of the globe. It is a wonderful thing, and yet a challenging thing as political and social forces cajole for influence in the new era of global media, personalised playlists and big data.

The Australian Institute of Music has a role to play in preparing students to flourish in these new worlds. This is done in several ways. First, generating and encouraging a culture that is safe and welcoming to a diverse range of people. This is everyone's responsibility in an organisation because its people are its culture-makers. Second, by constantly improving our awareness of the gaps in that culture and establishing processes that allow us to attend to those gaps with sensitivity, kindness and determination. And third, deliberately focusing on the future of AIM in our commercial, hiring and operating practices, such that it becomes more and more natural to embrace diversity, equity and inclusion, and the need for a specific plan becomes less pressing.

May this plan be a great step in that direction. Congratulations, and more power, to everyone involved in shaping and delivering it.

Dr Greg Clarke

AIM Chief Executive Officer

FOREWORD

Diversity and inclusion is a process of continuous personal listening and learning.

There is no complete level of understanding of diversity and inclusion; like music, there is always more to learn and another voice to hear.

This plan is both a result of listening to diverse voices and a path forward to ensure that more diverse voices are encouraged and included at AIM in the future.

AIM has, for me, always been a place where all styles and methods of music making are explored, valued, and celebrated. Now is the time to take this creativity and expand it to work towards a new future of music education and a new future music industry.

I can't wait to see and hear what comes of it.

Alice Bennett
AIM Diversity Advisor

KEY TERMS

DIVERSITY

The unique aspects of each person's identity including gender, ethnicity, cultural background, ability, sexuality, and more.

EQUITY

Fair and equal treatment, access, and opportunity with acknowledgement of barriers that impact some groups of people.

INCLUSION

The practice of creating environments in which all people feel welcomed, involved, respected, and valued.

SOCIAL MODEL OF DISABILITY

An understanding of disability as the result of physical, attitudinal, communication, and social barriers. Under the social model, it is these environmental barriers rather than individual impairments that are disabling, and the removal of barriers enables people living with impairments to participate in society on an equal basis with others (People With Disability Australia 2022)

UNIVERSAL DESIGN FOR LEARNING

An accessible learning framework developed by CAST (previously the Centre for Applied Special Technology) that focusses on removing barriers to learning by creating learning environments and materials that cater for the natural variability of learners (Meyer, Rose & Gordon 2014).

DEVELOPMENT

The Diversity, Equity and Inclusion Plan 2022-2025 is AIM's first DEI Plan. It identifies and builds on existing practices in different departments across AIM, structuring them to create a targeted and goal-oriented approach to improving the experience of staff and students and increasing the diversity and accessibility of AIM's activities.

The DEI Plan was informed by a Diversity and Inclusion Survey of both staff and students in 2021, 10 interviews with staff and students conducted during 2021 and 2022, and a benchmarking review of DEI Plans of other tertiary institutions and arts organisations in 2021. Further consultation with staff was undertaken during the drafting process before approval by the AIM Board of Directors.

Through this DEI Plan, AIM strives to demonstrate leadership in driving social change through best practice approaches to diversity, equity, and inclusion.

Many groups in society have and continue to be excluded from artistic and cultural life and higher education, and AIM acknowledges the potential for music to contribute to the removal of these inequalities and barriers. It is with this in mind that AIM champions the study of a diverse range of genres, styles, practices, and methods of music making, so that the future of music is diverse and inclusive of many voices.
